

Family-Driven Practice: What It Means and Why It Matters

Families as Allies – 601-355-0915 www.faams.org Text Family19 to 22828

Today's Goals

1. Participants will be able to describe what family-driven practice means.
2. Participants will be able to identify at least three practical ways that family driven practice matters
3. Participants will be able to distinguish between family-driven practice and other concepts that it is commonly confused with.

Families as Allies

We are the only statewide organization run by and for families of children with behavioral health challenges in Mississippi. We support each other and work together to make things better for our children.

Our vision is that all children will have the opportunity to reach their potential and succeed, and our mission is that families are partners in their children's care.

Our core values define us: every child and family, excellence, partnership and accountability.

What Do We Believe About Families?

Families know their children better than anyone else does.

Families are their children's strongest advocates.

Systems should follow laws and policies about families' and children's rights.

Federation of Families Definition of Family-Driven Practice

Family-driven means families have a primary decision making role in the care of their own children as well as the policies and procedures governing care for all children in their community, state, tribe, territory and nation.

This includes:

Choosing culturally and linguistically competent supports, services, and providers;

Setting goals;

Designing, implementing and evaluating programs;

Monitoring outcomes; and

Partnering in funding decisions.

Families and youth, providers, administrators, and policymakers accept and support willingly and enthusiastically embrace shared decision-making and responsibility for outcomes, as evidenced by:

1. Families and youth share and have access to accurate, understandable, and complete information necessary to set goals and to make informed decisions.
2. Families define their family composition and family decision-makers, whether biological, adoptive, foster, sibling, or surrogate family voice advocating on their behalf.
3. Families and family-run organizations engage in peer support to reduce isolation, achieve short-and long-term family goals, and strengthen family capacity and voice.
4. Families and family-run organizations provide direction for policy decisions that impact funding, supports, and services, including the right of families and youth to have meaningful voice at the individual and policy level.

5. Providers, agencies, and systems take the initiative to change policy and practice from provider-driven to family-driven.
6. Providers, agencies, and systems embrace family-driven practice, by allocating staff, training, support and resources to adequately fund and sustain family-driven services for children, youth and families, and the work of family and youth run organizations.
7. Community attitude change efforts focus on removing barriers and eliminating bias and discrimination.
8. Communities value and celebrate the diverse cultures of children, youth, and families and work to eliminate disparities.
9. Communities recognize that culture is an ever-changing dynamic and are responsive to the cultural and linguistic needs of all children, youth, and families

Why Does It Matter?

Why Family-Driven Practice Matters

1. Improved outcomes that are meaningful to families
2. Better use of provider skills and resources
3. More efficient use of funding

Things that Can Masquerade as Family-Driven Practice

1. Focus on how much you care about families
2. Seeing oneself as the voice for families
3. Focusing on families' stories rather than their lived experience.
4. Efforts to include families that are different from how other groups are included
5. Not offering families the same benefits and preparation that other professionals receive when they do system-level work
6. Assuming that a system or provider organization can take on the role that a family-run organization plays in a system of care.

How Did We Do?

1. Participants will be able to describe what family-driven practice means.
2. Participants will be able to identify at least three practical ways that family driven practice matters
3. Participants will be able to distinguish between family-driven practice and other concepts that it is commonly confused with.
